INFORMAL LEADERSHIP

One of the greatest challenges facing modern leaders is how to make people do what you want them to do when you don't have formal responsibility or authority over them. This programme will show you the essential elements to succeed when you have a high level of responsibility for project performance or cross organisational collaboration but are not positioned in a role of formal power or influence in the organisation.

By participating in this programme Informal Leadership, you will gain greater understanding of the complexity in which an informal leader is navigating, you will acquire tools and techniques that can help you succeed in leading people without the use or "privilege" of formal authority in your role.

Participant Profile

This course is relevant to anyone who has responsibilities across the organisation, while lacking formal management authority over the people who work 'for' them. This could include project managers, project staff, product managers, marketing managers, organisational consultants, and HR consultants.

Although this can be taken as stand stand-alone course, it works well in combination with Communication with Stakeholders, Change Management, and Business Value Creation.

"The most important thing I've learned is that there are many of us who are informal leaders - and that the challenges I experience are not necessarily about me - but about the position."

- Lærke Lund, Landbrug og fødevarer, F.m.b.a

The Programme

The course takes place over 3 intensive training days, two consecutive days and then another day about 3 weeks later. The training centres on your own experiences and reflections and how these relate to the theory.
